TRAC SHOWCASES

The Effect

The main character was the female psychiatrist.

The only prop used was a brain in a bucket.

The two patients don't fall in love with each other.

Fish

Tree's younger brother pretended to be a cat.

The story didn't end off on a cliffhanger.

There was a glowing fish in a drawer.

Netherlands

The dancers showcased sharp movements.

The music consistently changed with the dances.

There were over 5 performances within the show.

Sydney's Dance Company

There was a 15 minute intermission during the hour long performance

The music was instrumental.

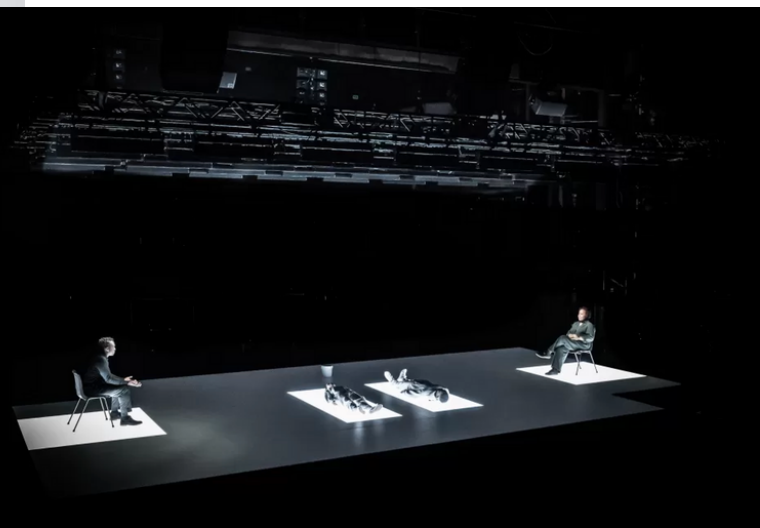

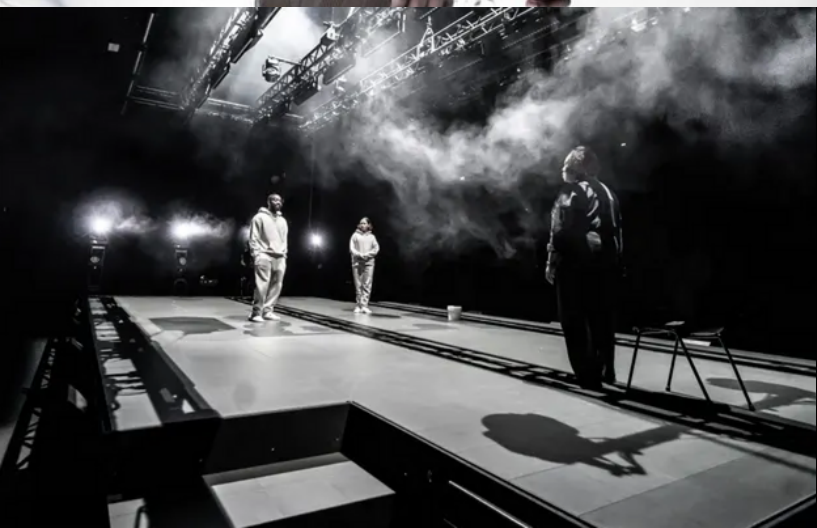

The dancing was embrative, making the performers look connected.

The Effect

The light and smoke combined
with acting brings
you into the play's rollercoaster of
exhilaration, fear,
and hopelessness

UNPOPULAR OPINIONS

Very stereotypical and in my opinion it was not based on an actual fish. Also the fact that the scenes were very exaggerated and it depicted on how black people act outside of TV which goes back to the stereotypical aspect

UNPOPULAR OPINIONS

The Effect has to be hands down the best performance I've seen. The way the characters did the best even though there was little to no props. I love the interaction with the audience and performance as well and really got a good idea of how these actors really felt.

The Netherlands Dans Theater

Each section of the performance had something unique to offer. In tone and movement style, they were incredibly different, but each took me on a different visual and emotional journey.

With movement that didn't just make me look because I didn't know it was possible, but because I had never considered it being possible.

Fish

Adrienne D. Williams is able to direct the show in such a way
that you really feel like you are right
there besides the characters.

Named after the popular phrase, “give a man a fish, feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish, feed him forever,” the plays asks our schools to do that. To give students the skills and knowledge they aren’t giving student, instead of just the answers.
